The CS 189/289A Honor Code.

I promise that, for the CS 189/289A Midterm and Final Exam,

- all my exam work will be done entirely by myself, with no help from others;

- I will not communicate with anybody except the proctors during the exam;

- I will not consult any online sources other than the exam itself, the exam instructions (see URL below), the Gradescope pages for submitting my answers, the Piazza post for proctor clarifications, and the Google Form by which I may request clarifications;

- I will not consult any people or sources other than my printed/handwritten (on paper only) notes and books and the online sources listed above;

- I will not provide any information about the exam's contents to other people until after 11 PM (Berkeley time) the evening of the exam; and

- I will follow the online proctoring rules specified in the exam instructions:

Write the following statement by hand and sign below it. (If you have to write it out by trackpad, don't worry about legibility.)

"I pledge my honor that I will not violate this Honor Code during the examinations. I certify that all solutions will be entirely my own, that I will not consult people or sources other than those permitted, and that I will not share information with others during the exam."
